GUIDELINES FOR BOOK REVIEWS

The Law, Technology and Humans book review editor, Yeliz Figen Döker, invites scholars to review books.

Reviews should not be descriptive or summarise content but provide a critical evaluation and/or analysis of the book and its contribution to the field. It is not just about the 'what?', but also about the 'so what?' factor of the book.

Reviews should be written for a non-specialist audience and outline the strengths and any weaknesses of the book, taking into account the author/s aims in writing the book and supporting any evaluation of the book with relevant evidence. In evaluating the contribution of the book, you might consider the thesis and/or purpose of the book, authors expertise, relationship of the book with other work in its field, use of evidence, its intended audience, its scope and structure.

A typical structure for a book review consists of introduction, background information, summary of the books main points, evaluation of the book and conclusion.

Book reviews should be 600-1000 words.

Please format reviews as follows:

- Double spaced
- 12 times new roman point font
- Save manuscript as a word document
- Avoid use of citations and footnotes

At the top of the review, please provide the following information:

- book author/s,
- publication date,
- title,
- publisher,
- place of publication,
- ISBN/ISSN

SUBMITTING BOOK REVIEWS: PROCESS

Before submitting your book review, please ensure you have adhered to the following guidelines for presentation.

1. Register with the journal as an author https://lthj.qut.edu.au/user/register
2. When you register you should provide, under metadata, details including affiliation, a short biography, URL to your home page (if applicable) and your email and correspondence details. A short bio is important as, once published, these details are displayed on the abstract page of the Journal. You may also include an ORCID ID
3. Please ensure the submission has been proof-read, professionally edited and is publication ready.
4. Manuscripts should be uploaded electronically, using one of the preferred formats: Microsoft Word or a compatible word document.
